Dear Giovanni Garibotti:

Good day.

Thank you for notifying us of this situation.

MARPOL Annex VI does not apply to emissions that are necessary for the purpose of securing the safety of a ship. If, in the opinion of the Master or the owner, the vessel must shift to non-compliant fuel oil to ensure the safety of the vessel, the Master or the owner may order that shift.

The USCG may investigate the circumstances that lead to the shift when personnel are available to do so. I recommend you maintain copies of records that will enable the USCG to complete its investigation.

Please contact me again if you have questions concerning this matter.

Dear Sirs good afternoon,

I apologize to trouble you, but I have your name from agents ISS Norfolk and I take the liberty to ask you some information concerning procedure to obtain special permission, if possible, and how to proceed about ECA area.

We are disponent owners of above vessel which still at Houston anchorage from 24th August, but now due to huge damage created in the Houston area by hurricane Harvey she is forced to remain at anchor and delay berthing / discharge operation due to such extraordinary situation.

We ask you kindly to advise, if due to such extraordinary situation, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), can grant special permission to burn IFO (not low Sulphur), without any fine or penalty to vessel, which could running short of LSMDO due to prolonged delay in berthing Houston, and consequently she will be forced to burn IFO instead of low Sulphur gasoil.

For your prompt guidance we, and agents ISS Houston, can confirm that the vessel arrived Houston road with sufficient LSMDO to comply in full with rules in force, and we stem well in advance in Houston additional LSMDO to safely permit to vessel to sail from Houston as required in ECA.

Please kindly revert on this matter in order we can plan and take all necessary next action in time to prevent any unpleasant situation.

Thanks in advance for your kind attention and reply.

Best regards

Dear Capt. Guilles good afternoon,

We well noted your last report with LSMDO and IFO rob.

We understand that channel closed up to minimum 30th August AGW, therefore please try to have more information locally from agents.

In the meantime please advise how much time we have left before we run out / change to IFO and estimated daily consumption without heating.

As far as last message from Mexico agents, we will revert with comment later.

Thanks in advance for your estimation / info.
